EDITH SHEPARD IS TO WED E. G. FABBRI.

Early in the Fall Probably, in the Church Built in Colonel Shepard's Memory.

The Bride-to-Be a Granddaughter of the Late William H. Vanderbilt and a Belle.

SHE MET HER FIANCE IN ITALY.

He Is a Son of the Late Emesto G. Fabbri and Wealthy-The Announcement a Surprise-New York to Be Their Home.

The marriage of Miss Edith Vanderb'l Shepard, the second daughter of the late Colonel Elliott Fitch Shepard, granddaugh ter of the late William H. Vanderbilt and cousin of Her Grace the Duchess of Mariborough, to Ernesto G. Fabbri, second sor of the late Ernesto G. Fabbri, will take place early in the Fall.

Although the date has not been decided upon, an early day in September will probably be selected. In that case the wedding will be celebrated in the beautiful stone Presbyterian church recently erected on Broadway at Scarborough-on-the-Hudson by Mrs. Shepard as a memorial to her husband. This memorial is one of the costli-est of the character in the country, and Miss Shepard's wedding will be the first celebrated in this church.

Woodles, the magnificent country house of Mrs. Shepard, which was erected by Colonel Shepard just before his death, and which cost fully $1,000,000, is within a quarter of a mile from the Shepard me-morial, and it is there that the wedding breakfast will be served. As at the mar-rlage of Miss Shepard's elder sister to William Jay Schleffelin, several years ago, the ceremony will, in all probability, be performed by the Rev. Dr. John Hall, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, of which Colonel Shepard was a trustee. But the Wall Street Guessers The Rev. Dr. Hall is an old friend of the Shepard family, and has presided at all the baptisms which have taken place in that family, as he undoubtedly will at all the family, as he undoubtedly will at all the weddings while he lives.

Mrs. Shepard and Miss Edith Shepard, who returned from Europe only a few weeks ago, are spending the summer at Woodlea, and have as their guests Mrs. Shepard's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Jay Schleffelin, and Mr. Fabbri. The Schleffelins may remain at Woodlea the greater part of the season.

Mrs. Shepard and Miss Edith Shepard, it will be remembered, sailed for Europe on the morning of the marriage of Miss Consuelo Vanderblit to the Duke of Marborough, a fact which caused some comment. The announcement of the engagement of Miss Shepard to Mr. Fabbri has caused no small amount of surprise to even Miss Shepard's most intimate friends, for it was not even known that she was acquainted with Mr. Fabbri. They met in Florence, Italy, a few months ago.

Who Lost This Watch? Michael J. Read, of the Central Office, in 300 Pieces

Captain O'Brien has in his possession a gold watch found by Detective-Sergeant Michael J. Read, of the Central Office, in a Bowery pawnshop. The watch was made dainty material. The veil of lace was secured to the hair with a bunch of orange blossoms.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Parker Morgan, rector of the parish of the Heavenly Rest, and the best man was J. Edward Harrington, half brother of the bridegroom. Miss Ethel Shaw was maid of honor. The bride's present to the latter was an exquisite diamond brooch. The unders were Messrs. Charles L. Andrews, R. H. Bonnell, Richard Hunter and Frank Van der Veer, brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony there was a large reception at Sherry's. The young couple will sail for Europe to-day to spend their honeymoon in travelling on the Continent.

How to Abate the Danger at Dead Man's Curve.

Accidents occur almost daily at the Fourteenth street curve, and yet the menace to life and limb remains. Yesterday a boy attempted to cross the tracks. In dodging a cable car he was knocked down and hurt by a horse. At that point the gripmen, under orders, send the cars around the curve at top speed. The company has stationed twelve men there to prevent accidents, but the evil itself remains. Engineers say that with comparatively small expense cars can be drawn around the curve at graduated speed. A special short cable, with minimum draft, has been suggested as the best means by which to accomplish this. Then the danger would be no greater on the curve than it is on a straight roadway.

I have no plans of the kind."

Mr. Hobart said that he anticipated a visit from Mark Hanna and other Republican leaders. "Mr. Hanna," he said, "will probably come to Paterson in the near future. I will not form any definite plans until them."

One of the political features of the day in Paterson was the organization of a new campaign club. Every member will be a wheelman and able to make a vigorous political speech. Uniforms will be worn and a McKinley and Hobert banner displayed on each wheel. The object of the organization will be to push the candidacy of the Republican nominees in outlying towns and villages. Frequent runs will be made to these towns at night and mass meetings conducted. The cyclers will first parade through town and invite the people to participate in the meeting. A glee club will be one of the features. Lawyer Foster W. Freeman is the head and front of the plan and Leonard J. Tynan, also a law-yer, will be lieutenant. In its one day of life the club has gained fifty members and it is expected that 200 names will be on the roll by to-night. In honor of Congressmann James F. Stewart the club is called "Stewart's Flying Legion."

Among the visitors at Mr. Hobart's residence yesterday was Robert P. Porter, superintendent of the last general census.

Then the cable car whizzed past in one direction and the horsear proceeded in the other. When the space was clear the boy jumped up and limped to the sidewalk. A hundred persons saw him knocked down, and all thought he would be killed. A politeman summoned an ambulance from the New York Hospital, where the boy's wounded foot was dressed. His home is at No. 186 Chrystle street.

Thousands of patrons of the Metropolitan Traction Company, who daily ride around the curves at Broadway and Fourteenth street, do so in the face of an impending accident. His plan was to go up on the roof of a tenement, armed with a book attached to about 100 feet of cord. On warm and pleas ant days it is the practice of bird owners to hang their pets cages out in the sunshine.

Clancy would let his hook down, catch it into the cage and bird and cage straight. Way soared upward.

Yesterday Clancy had cleaned out the canaries from an East Seventy-fifth tenement, and about 2 o'clock he espled a cage hanging on a hook containing afne-looking parrot. He at once brought his apparatus into play.

Now it so chanced that this bird had been taught, among other things, to say "Stop thief!"

Most opportunely, this command occurred to the bird just in the lack of time, and it rang the changes upon it till the neighborhood was aroused.

reaching the curves, from both directions. The cable is not released until the car has passed both curves. It is impossible, owing to the great tension on the cable at this point, to allow the grip to slip on the cable as on the State and Whitehall street curves, without destruction to the cable, pulleys and grip. Thus every car is thrown around the sharp turns at its maximum speeed, with the gripmen powerless to stop it no matter what may be on the tracks in front of it.

The Lexington avenue line has two curves at Twenty-third street. The cars move around either of these curves at any desired speed, up to the maximum of the cable. Very simple reasons exist for this. The power house of the Lexington avenue line is at Twenty-fifth street. A special cable running from the power house to Twenty-second street and Broadway is used on both of these curves. It is less than three thousand feet long, and seldom draws more than four or five cars at one time. Under this light tension the gripman to any desired speed on the curves with as little danger as on a straight roadway.
